

It's just the job
Karen . .

KAREN RICHARDSON always planned to be a model. So she took only temporary jobs until she grabbed her chance of becoming a permanent attraction on the glamour scene. And now she has outstanding prospects. Picture: DAVID JAMES

IT'S PAY DAY FOR FACTORY 'GHOSTS'

By WILLIAM DANIELS

A FIRM'S workers will today help to pay the wages of a dozen "ghosts."

They will dip into their pockets for a £1-a-head whipround to prevent a strike which could cripple the car industry.

One of the "ghosts" is a man who has been sacked from the Lucas starter factory in Birmingham.

The other eleven have been suspended without pay. But all of them are going into the factory each day and doing their normal jobs.

The management has said that as far as work is concerned the men no longer exist.

So their usual £85-a-week pay, due today, is coming from their fellow workers.

The bizarre ghost worker dispute has flared because of a row over new machinery and training programmes at the plant.

Angry workers wanted to walk out on strike when the management sacked tool-setter Bill Ewer for refusing to operate new machines.

But they decided instead to tell him to carry on working and agreed to pay his wages and those of eleven suspended tool-setters.

Americans test death-ray bomb

AMERICA has tested a neutron bomb underground in Nevada, it was officially announced yesterday. The bomb, designed to kill people with massive doses of radiation while leaving buildings intact, is being developed as a warhead for the Lance missile, currently armed with conventional nuclear warheads.
